Prólogo

La humanidad avanza con ritmo cada vez más acelerado, y las obras de consulta destinadas a servirla, como este diccionario, deben mantenerse a tono con tal progreso si han de suministrar satisfactoriamente la información que en ellas se busca. Por eso el Diccionario Velázquez, reconocido mundialmente como el diccionario bilingüe español-inglés más autorizado, necesita estar al día con relación a todas las voces nuevas que va imponiendo el prodigioso progreso de nuestra época en el campo de las ciencias, de los inventos y los descubrimientos; así como en las voces que las costumbres, en constante evolución, y los acontecimientos, van introduciendo en ambos idiomas.

De este modo el NUEVO DICCIONARIO VELÁZQUEZ REVISADO, cuidadosamente revisado, sin sacrificar ninguna de las tradicionales características que han hecho de sus anteriores ediciones el prototipo de los diccionarios de su género, viene a ser, sin lugar a duda, la más moderna y completa de las ediciones de dicha obra publicadas hasta hoy.

Se han incluido en esta novísima edición miles de voces nuevas, y también modismos y locuciones de uso general, que reemplazan expresiones que han dejado de ser de uso común y que, en consecuencia, ya no tienen razón de ocupar lugar en una obra eminentemente práctica como ésta.

Esta última revisión del diccionario ha sido exhaustiva. Se ha tratado de conseguir que el Diccionario Velázquez responda cada día más eficazmente a las necesidades de quienes recurren a él como medio práctico para resolver sus problemas de traducción en el campo de los negocios, de la información cotidiana, de la tecnología, de las ciencias en general, de la literatura, etc. y se ha prestado particular atención a las voces y locuciones de uso común en la América Hispana y en los Estados Unidos, ya que diariamente crecen y se intensifican las relaciones comerciales y amistosas entre estas dos grandes e importantes regiones del mundo moderno.

La revisión de las listas de equivalentes de los nombres geográficos que se escriben de manera diferente en español y en inglés se ha realizado con cuidado meticuloso. Las listas que forman parte de la presente edición incluyen todos los cambios que en tales nombres han determinado los acontecimientos históricos recientes.

De similar estudio han sido objeto las listas de nombres propios y de gentilicios que forman parte de los apéndices de la obra, así como las tablas de pesas y medidas. La de abreviaturas ha sido puesta al día para que responda, asimismo, al carácter fundamentalmente práctico de la obra.

Con tales innovaciones se ha acrecentado poderosamente la utilidad de este diccionario, y sus directores y editores se atreven a esperar que resultará un instrumento más valioso aún que las anteriores ediciones para quienes lo consulten, ya se trate de estudiantes de un nuevo idioma, de doctos que realicen estudios literarios en cualquiera de las dos lenguas, o en ambas, o de traductores profesionales, de hecho, para todos y cada uno de cuantos necesiten un guía autorizado que los ayude a recorrer el siempre escabroso camino que entraña la traducción de ideas del inglés al español, y viceversa.

Sinopsis

de la Lengua Inglesa.

ALFABETO

Las letras que componen el alfabeto inglés son veintiséis, a saber:

a, b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, j, k, l, m, n, o, p, q, r, s, t, u, v, w, x, y, z.

Las vocales son a, e, i, o, u y algunas veces w, y.

Las consonantes son todas las demás.

(Para los sonidos de las letras inglesas, véase la "Introducción", que sigue a esta Sinopsis).

PARTES DE LA ORACIÓN

Las partes de la oración son diez, a saber: The Article (el Artículo), the Noun o Substantive (el Nombre o Sustantivo), the Adjective (el Adjetivo), the Pronoun (el Pronombre), the Verb (el Verbo), the Participle (el Participio), the Adverb (el Adverbio), the Preposition (la Preposición), the Conjunction (la Conjunción), y the Interjection (la Interjección).

DE LOS ARTÍCULOS

Los Artículos son dos, a o an (un, una), y the (el, los; la, las; los).

A se usa delante de consonante; como, a man (un hombre); y an delante de vocal o h muda: como an age (un siglo), an hour (una hora).

The se usa delante de nombres en ambos números: como the man (el hombre), the men (los hombres).

A se llama artículo indefinido, porque no se refiere a ninguna persona o cosa en particular: como a president (un presidente). The se llama artículo definido, porque se refiere siempre a una persona o cosa en particular, como "The president of the United States" (El presidente de los Estados Unidos).

El artículo a se pone delante de los nombres de peso, medida, número; los de los oficios, empleos, dignidades, y en las admiraciones, aunque no se usa en español: como "Tea is sold at a dollar a pound" (El té se vende a dólar la libra). "He has a sister who is a widow, and a brother who is a captain" (Él tiene una hermana viuda y un hermano que es capitán). "He is an American" (Él es americano). "What a beautiful woman!" (¡Qué hermosa mujer!).

El artículo definido castellano, delante de un nombre común tomado en toda la extensión de su significado, no se traduce en inglés: v.g., "Man is mortal" (El hombre es mortal); pero si el sustantivo sólo designa una especie, aunque tomado en un sentido general, se expresa: v.g., "The negro is our brother" (El negro es nuestro hermano).

Cuando un nombre propio va precedido del de la dignidad, cargo, etc., no admite el artículo en inglés: v.g., "General Washington" (El general Washington), "Judge Field" (El juez Field). El artículo se omite también a menudo en inglés cuando se repite delante de varios sustantivos seguidos: v.g., "The father, mother and children are sick" (El padre, la madre y los niños están enfermos). Tampoco se traduce cuando precede a los nombres Señor o Señora (Mr. o Mrs.), seguidos de un nombre propio: v.g., "Have you seen Mr. or Mrs. N.?" (¿Ha visto Ud. al Señor o a la Señora N.?).

DEL NOMBRE O SUSTANTIVO

El Nombre se divide en común y propio.

Nombre común es el que conviene a muchas personas o cosas: como city (ciudad), man (hombre).

Nombre propio es el que conviene a una sola cosa o persona: como London (Londres), Peter (Pedro).

DEL GÉNERO

Los géneros son tres: masculino, femenino y neutro.

Todo nombre de varón o animal macho, es masculino; todo nombre de mujer o animal hembra, es femenino; todos los nombres de cosas inanimadas son del género neutro.

Hay nombres que distinguen el género por una palabra diferente: v.g., brother (hermano), sister (hermana); otros lo expresan por medio de la terminación: v.g., lion (león), lioness (leona); y otros que lo distinguen por medio de las palabras male o female: como "A male child" (un niño), "A female child" (una niña); man o maid: como "A man-servant" (un criado), "A maid-servant" (una criada); cock o hen: como

"A cock sparrow" (un gorrión), "A hen sparrow" (un gorrión hembra); he o she: como "A he-bear" (un oso), "A she-bear" (una osa).

DEL NÚMERO

Los Números de los nombres son dos, singular y plural.

El plural se forma generalmente añadiendo una s al singular: v.g., guide (guía), guides (guías); book (libro), books (libros).

Los nombres acabados en ch (cuando suena como en castellano), o en ss, x u o, precedida de consonante, forman el plural añadiendo es al singular: v.g., church (iglesia), churches (iglesias); kiss (beso), kisses (besos); fox (zorro), foxes (zorros); hero (héroe), heroes (héroes); pero si la ch suena como k, añaden solamente s: v.g., monarch (monarca), monarchs (monarcas).

Los terminados en y, precedida de una vocal, siguen la regla general: v.g., day (día), days (días); pero si la precede una consonante, la mudan en i y añaden es: v.g., fly (mosca), flies (moscas); lady (señora), ladies (señoras).

Los nombres que acaban en f o fe mudan estas letras en v y añaden es: v.g., leaf (hoja), leaves (hojas); life (vida), lives (vidas). Se exceptúan chief (jefe), dwarf (enano), handkerchief (pañuelo de mano), etc., y también muff (manguito), que forman el plural añadiendo s.

Hay algunos nombres cuyos plurales son irregulares: v.g., man (hombre), men (hombres); foot (pie), feet (pies), etc.; child (hijo), children (hijos). Estos nombres corresponden generalmente a palabras semejantes del alemán.

DE LOS CASOS DE LOS NOMBRES

Los casos son tres: The Nominative (el Nominativo), the Possessive o Genitive (el Posesivo o Genitivo) y the Objective o Accusative (el Objetivo o Acusativo).

El Nominativo y el Objetivo se distinguen sólo por su colocación en la frase: v.g., "The father loves the son" (El padre ama al hijo); "The son loves the father" (El hijo ama al padre).

El Posesivo denota posesión y se forma invirtiendo el orden y poniendo primero en inglés el nombre que es último en español, después del cual se pone un apóstrofo y la letra s: v.g., "My father's house" (La casa de mi padre); "The boy's hat" (El sombrero del muchacho). Cuando los plurales terminan en s, el Posesivo se forma añadiendo solamente el apóstrofo: como, "My brothers' horse" (El caballo de mis hermanos). Viniendo más de dos sustantivos seguidos, el apóstrofo y la s se ponen a cada uno de ellos: v.g., "The captain's son's friend's horse" (El caballo del amigo del hijo del capitán). En tal caso sería mejor cambiar la construcción. Con el apóstrofo y la s ('s) se indica también el lugar, sitio o casa en donde se ha hecho alguna cosa: v.g., "He supped last night at your sister's", (Él cenó anoche en casa de tu hermana).

DE LOS ADJETIVOS

Los Adjetivos en inglés no admiten variación de género ni número: v.g., "A prudent man", (Un hombre prudente); "Prudent men", (Hombres prudentes); "A prudent woman", (Una mujer prudente); "Prudent women", (Mujeres prudentes); y se colocan generalmente antes del sustantivo: v.g., "He wants hot water", (Él quiere agua caliente).

La sola variación que admiten es la de los grados de comparación. Estos son Positivo, Comparativo y Superlativo.

El Comparativo de aumento se forma por medio del adverbio more (más), seguido de than (que): v.g., intelligent (inteligente), "more intelligent than he" (más inteligente que él). También se forma añadiendo una r a los monosílabos que acaban en e, o er a los que terminan en otra letra: v.g., wiser (más sabio); black (negro), blacker (más negro).

El Comparativo de inferioridad o disminución se forma por medio del adverbio less (menos), o less than (menos que): v.g., "He is less rich than she", (Él es menos rico que ella).

El Comparativo de igualdad con los adjetivos se expresa con los adverbios as ... (tan ...) as (como); o not less ... (no menos ...) than (que): v.g., "He is as generous as she" (Él es tan generoso como ella); "She is not less generous than he" (Ella no es menos generosa que él).

El Comparativo de igualdad con los sustantivos se expresa por as o so much (tanto, tanta), en singular; y por as many (tantos, tantas) en plural, y el como siguiente por as: v.g., "She has as much gold as silver" (Ella tiene tanto oro como plata); "He has as many dogs as horses" (Él tiene tantos perros como caballos).

El Superlativo se forma con los adverbios very (muy), most o least, y también añadiendo st a los acabados en e, o est a los terminados en otras letras.

Cuando el positivo acaba en y la muda en i, y a ésta añade las letras er para el comparativo, y est para el superlativo: v.g., dry (seco), drier o more dry (más seco), driest (sequísimo), very dry (muy seco).

Which se aplica a animales irracionales y a cosas: como, "A dog which barks" (un perro que ladra); "the book which was lost" (el libro que se perdió).

That se emplea frecuentemente en vez de who o which, por preferencia, antes de una cláusula o frase: como, "The boy that reads constantly" (el muchacho que lee asiduamente); "The book that was lost" (el libro que se perdió).

DEL VERBO

Los Verbos son de tres clases: Transitivos o Activos, Pasivos e Intransitivos o Neutros.

Verbo activo o transitivo es aquel cuya acción recae sobre algún objeto: v. gr., "James strikes the table" (Jaime golpea la mesa).

Verbo pasivo es el que representa una acción como sufrida o recibida por el sujeto: v. gr., "The table was struck" (la mesa fue golpeada).

Verbo neutro o intransitivo es el que expresa la existencia o el estado de los seres, o una acción que no pasa del sujeto: v. gr., "I am here" (Yo estoy aquí); "He sleeps" (él duerme); "I run" (yo corro).

El verbo se divide por razón de su forma, en Regular, Irregular y Defectivo.

Verbo regular es el que forma su imperfecto y pretérito de indicativo (Indicative Imperfect) y su participio pasivo (Past Participle) agregando d o ed al presente (Present); como love (amo); loved (amaba, amé); loved amado; hoist (alzar), hoisted (alzaba, alcé; alzado).

Verbo irregular es el que se separa de la regla establecida en el párrafo anterior; como, write (escribo); wrote (escribía, escribí); written (escrito).

Se llama Verbo defectivo el que carece de alguno de sus tiempos y personas; a esta clase pertenecen la mayor parte de los auxiliares y todos los impersonales.

DE LOS MODOS Y TIEMPOS DEL VERBO

Los verbos tienen cuatro modos: Infinitivo, Indicativo, Imperativo y Subjuntivo.

Los tiempos del verbo son seis: the present (el Presente); the past (el Imperfecto y Pretérito); the perfect (el Perfecto Próximo); the pluperfect (el Pluscuamperfecto); the future (el Futuro) y the future perfect (el Futuro Anterior).

FORMACIÓN DE LOS TIEMPOS DEL VERBO

El Presente de Infinitivo es como la raíz de que nacen y se forman los demás tiempos y personas, y se distingue por la preposición to: v. g., to admire (admirar); to abandon (abandonar). Cuando el presente de infinitivo se usa solo, debe estar precedido siempre de dicha preposición.

El Gerundio, que en inglés es Participio Presente, se forma añadiendo la terminación -ing al presente del infinitivo, el cual, en este caso, omite la preposición to, y también la e, si acaba en esta letra: v. g., to admire (admirar), admiring (admirando); to abandon (abandonar), abandoning (abandonando).

El Participio Pasivo de los verbos regulares se forma añadiendo una d al infinitivo de los que terminan en e, y ed a los que acaban en otra letra: v. g., to admire (admirar), admired (admirado); to abandon (abandonar), abandoned (abandonado). Si el infinitivo acaba en y y precedida de una vocal, añade ed: v. g., to pray (suplicar), prayed (suplicado); pero si es una consonante la que precede a la y, la convierte en i y añade ed: v. g., to satisfy (satisfacer), satisfied (satisfecho).

Presente de Indicativo. La primera persona singular, y la primera, segunda y tercera persona plural del Presente de Indicativo son lo mismo que el presente de infinitivo, sin la preposición to; pero en su lugar deben expresar el pronombre correspondiente: v. g., to admire (admirar); I admire, we admire, you admire, they admire (yo admiro, nosotros admiramos, etc.). Se exceptúa de esta regla el verbo to be (ser).

La tercera persona singular del Presente de Indicativo se forma añadiendo una s al presente de infinitivo: v. g., to love (amar), he loves (él ama); to abandon (abandonar), he abandons (él abandona).

-Excepciones: Cuando el infinitivo acaba en o, ch, sh, ss, th, x o z, se añade es: v. g., to go (ir), he goes, (él va); to beseech (suplicar), he beseeches (él suplica), etc. Si el verbo acaba en y y precedida de una consonante, la convierte en i y añade es; pero si viene después de vocal, añade s solamente: v. g., to reply (replicar), he replies (él replica); to pay (pagar), he pays (él paga).

El Imperfecto y Pretérito (past tense) de indicativo de los verbos regulares es lo mismo que su participio pasivo: v. g., to promise (prometer), promised (prometido), I promised (yo prometía o prometí). Si el infinitivo acaba en y y precedida de consonante, la cambia en i y añade ed; pero si no, la retiene y añade ed: v. g., to reply (replicar), I replied (yo replicaba o repliqué); to delay (dilatarse), I delayed (yo dilataba o dilaté).

El Futuro, cuando significa simplemente una acción por venir, se forma por medio del auxiliar shall prefijado al infinitivo, sin la partícula to, en las primeras personas, y will en las demás. Pero cuando indica promesa, deseo vehemente, mando o amenaza, se expresa por medio de will en las primeras personas y shall en las demás.

El Condicional se forma con should y would.

Should en las primeras personas y would en las demás, aunque en la práctica se usa would en todas.

El Presente del Modo Subjuntivo se forma por medio de los auxiliares may o can, o de las conjunciones if, though o whether, prefijados al infinitivo sin la partícula to: "I may write" (puede que yo escriba, o no escriba). "Whether it prove true or not" (Sea que el caso resulte verdadero o no). "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him" (Aun cuando me matare, en él confiaré).

El Imperfecto de Subjuntivo se forma por medio de los auxiliares might, could, would o should, según su respectiva significación, prefijados al infinitivo sin la partícula to: v.g., to sell (vender), "I might sell" (yo quizá vendiera).

Los Tiempos Compuestos se forman, como en castellano, por medio del auxiliar to have, seguido del participio pasivo del verbo principal: v.g., I have arrived (he llegado); I had arrived (yo había o hube llegado); I shall have arrived (yo habré llegado); I may have arrived (yo haya llegado); I might, could, would o should have arrived (yo hubiera o hubiese llegado).

Todas estas irregularidades están incluidas en este Diccionario, en sus respectivos lugares; pero para facilitar a los principiantes el hallarlas, se pone la siguiente lista de todas ellas en inglés solamente, para no hacer muy difusa esta Sinopsis.

DEL ADVERBIO

Los Adverbios de modo o calidad, que en castellano se forman añadiendo la terminación mente al adjetivo, se expresan en inglés por medio de la sílaba ly añadida al mismo: v.g., wise (sabio), wisely (sabiamente); clear (claro), clearly (claramente).

Los Adverbios admiten los grados de comparación, y los expresan con las mismas letras que los adjetivos: v.g., near (cerca), nearer (más cerca), the nearest (lo más cerca).

En inglés no se puede usar más de una negación; y así, No quiero nada se traduce, "I want nothing".

DE LA PREPOSICIÓN

Hay gran número de verbos en inglés que van acompañados de ciertas preposiciones, las cuales son como parte de ellos, entran en su significación y la hacen variar, a manera de los verbos separables en alemán: v.g., To bring, traer, llevar. To bring about, poner por obra, efectuar. To bring forth, dar de sí, producir; parir, dar a luz; exhibir. To bring in, introducir, hacer entrar; alegar, declarar; producir, dejar utilidad o ganancia. To bring over, transportar, hacer atravesar; atraer, ganar a alguno en su partido. To bring out, sacar, extraer; hacer salir; poner en evidencia; mostrar; descubrir; publicar. To bring up, subir, hacer subir; presentar; servir a la mesa; educar, enseñar. Estas modificaciones van indicadas con mucho cuidado en el texto de este diccionario.

DE LA CONJUNCIÓN

Las Conjunciones se dividen en inglés, como en español, en copulativas y disyuntivas.

Copulativas son las que enlazan simplemente unas palabras con otras, y las oraciones entre sí: v.g., "Peter and John will speak" (Pedro y Juan hablarán); "Wisdom and ignorance are opposites" (Sabiduría e ignorancia son cosas opuestas).

Disyuntivas son las que significan división o alternativa entre las cosas: v.g., "I speak neither English nor German" (Yo no hablo ni inglés ni alemán).

DE LA INTERJECCIÓN O EXCLAMACIÓN

La Interjección es una palabra que sirve para expresar los varios afectos del ánimo, o para llamar la atención: como, "Oh, what a beautiful creature! (¡Oh, qué hermosa criatura!) "See! (¡Mira!).

OBSERVACIONES SOBRE ALGUNAS REGLAS DE LA SINTAXIS

Cuando los poseedores de una misma cosa son dos o más, el apóstrofo y la s se ponen sólo después del último: v.g., "The father and son's house" (La casa del padre y del hijo); "John and Henry's book" (El libro de Juan y de Enrique).

Dos o más sustantivos singulares, regidos por las conjunciones either.....or, neither.....nor, rigen al verbo, al adjetivo y al pronombre en singular: v.g., "Either Peter or John is guilty" (o Pedro o Juan son culpables); "Neither time nor distance is able to diminish our friendship" (ni el tiempo ni la distancia son capaces de disminuir nuestra amistad).

La preposición to, que designa el infinitivo, se omite frecuentemente después de los verbos to bid, dare, need, make, see, hear, let y los auxiliares may, can, will, shall, must, y sus pretéritos: v.g., "I dare say" (Me atrevo a decir).

Los verbos que significan esperar, mandar, desear, etc., rigen al otro verbo en presente de infinitivo con preferencia al perfecto del mismo: v.g., "I found him better than I expected to find him" y no "to have found him" (le hallé mejor de lo que yo esperaba hallarle, y no haberle hallado).

El participio presente inglés (gerundio español) se traduce en el presente de infinitivo con la misma preposición, excepto cuando esta es by, pues en tal caso se omite, y el participio se traduce por el gerundio: v.g., "The taking from another what is his, without his permission, is called stealing" (El tomar de otro lo que no es suyo, sin su permiso, se llama robar). En este caso el participio es un nombre. "John was sent to prepare the way by preaching repentance" (Juan fue enviado para preparar el camino predicando la penitencia).

Algunas conjunciones requieren el indicativo y otras el subjuntivo; en general, cuando el sentido es contingente o dudoso, se debe usar el último: v.g., "If I were to write, he would not do it" (Si yo le escribiera, él no lo haría); "He will not be pardoned unless he repent" (Él no será perdonado, a menos que se arrepienta).

A

a [eɪ] [ei], primera letra del alfabeto y una de las cinco vocales, tiene cuatro sonidos distintos en inglés; el primero como la e en castellano, aunque prolongada de modo que se parece algo al diptongo ei, como en fate, face, waste, etc.; el segundo como la a larga en castellano, en far; el tercero participa del sonido de o y a indistinto, cual se oye en fall, wall; y el cuarto es como una a breve en fat. Tiene también dos sonidos indistintos, como queda explicado en la introducción, donde se indican los respectivos signos para todos estos sonidos.

a [eɪ] [ei], y cuando no tiene acento, [a], artículo indefinido singular, significa un o una en castellano, ej. A man, un hombre; pero cuando precede a una palabra que empieza con vocal o h no aspirada, se convierte en an; ej. An ox, un buey; an hour, una hora. Muchas veces se pospone a palabras que en castellano la preceden; ej. Such a man, semejante hombre. A es algunas veces nombre sustantivo. Como, A capital A, Una A mayúscula.

a [ɑ] [a], prep. se halla a veces delante del participio activo, para denotar la acción de un verbo; ej. It was a hunting party, era un grupo de caza.
