The h is never sounded in the Spanish language except by the people in Andalusia, Extremadura, and the former Spanish possessions in America. The words in which h was preceded by a p, and took the sound of f, are now written as pronounced, thus: fenómeno, phenomenon. After r and t the h is entirely omitted, as in, reuma, rheum, teatro, theater; but it is retained, but not aspirated, in all words which originally began with h, or between two vowels, as honor, almohaza.
