Preface

Humanity marches on at a rapidly advancing rhythm, and reference works intended to serve it, such as this dictionary, should keep in step with progress if they are to provide satisfactorily the information sought. That is why the Velázquez Dictionary, recognized throughout the world as the highest authority in bilingual Spanish-English dictionaries, needs to keep pace with all the new terms which the prodigious progress of our times is introducing in the fields of science, inventions and discoveries, as well as with those terms which constantly evolving customs and events introduce into both languages.

Thus the NEW REVISED VELÁZQUEZ DICTIONARY, without sacrificing any of the traditional characteristics which have made predecessor editions the pattern for dictionaries of this type, is without doubt the most modern and complete edition of the work ever published. Included in the main alphabetical word lists are thousands of new terms and idiomatic expressions of general use, replacing expressions no longer in common usage which consequently have no place in a book as eminently practical as this one.

This latest revision of the text has been exhaustive. The aim has been to have the Velázquez Dictionary respond more efficiently each day to the needs of those consulting it as a practical medium to solve their translation problems in the fields of business, of current events, of technology, of science in general, of literature, etc. At the same time particular attention has been paid to the terms and idioms commonly used in Spanish America and in the United States, since commercial and friendly relations between these two great regions of the modern world are daily becoming more frequent and important.

The equivalents of geographical names and adjectives which are not written identically in Spanish and English have been meticulously revised. The lists making up the present edition include all the changes which such names have undergone through recent historical events.

A similar study has been made of the lists of proper names appearing in the supplements of the book, as well as those of weights and measures. The list of abbreviations has been brought up-to-date so that it may also respond to the fundamentally practical nature of the book.

Through such innovations the usefulness of this dictionary has been tremendously enhanced, and its editors and publishers dare to hope that it may prove even more valuable than earlier editions to its users, whether they be students in process of learning a second tongue, scholars engaged in literary research in either or both languages, or professional and commercial translators—in fact anyone and everyone who has need of authoritative guidance over the difficult road of English-Spanish or Spanish-English translation.

Esta página dejada en blanco al propósito.

A Synopsis of the Spanish or Castilian Language.

THE PARTS OF SPEECH are: the Article, the Noun (substantive and adjective), the Pronoun, the Verb, the Participle, the Adverb, the Preposition, the Conjunction, and the Interjection.

THE ARTICLE

The article has the function of:

a) Pointing out the gender and the number of the grammatical elements before which it is placed, as it agrees with them in gender and number.

b) Pointing out the substantive character of these elements.

1. The articles are always placed before the noun, never behind. They admit another word between them and the name they determine.

- Los inquietos niños. - El ya famoso futbolista.

2. The masculine article el may indicate also the feminine when the word which determines starts by accented a.

-El agua, el alma, el hacha, el águila, el hambre, el ama.

There are also other exceptions:

- El turista, el problema, el esquema, el tema.

- La radio, la foto, la moto.

3. The article is used:

a) Before rivers, mountains and seas.

- El río Duero - Los Pirineos - El Mar Mediterráneo.

b) Before some countries:

- La Argentina, El Brasil, El Canadá, La China, El Ecuador, Los Estados Unidos.

Anyway, if there is any doubt, the article can be omitted.

- La China es un país enorme. - Voy a China.

c) Before the name of some regions and some cities:

- La Rioja, La Mancha, La Coruña, La Plata, El Cairo.

d) Before time expressions:

- Son las cinco. - Llegaré el sábado.

e) Before the parts of the body and garments:

- El niño tiene la cara sucia. - Se puso el abrigo.

f) With formulas of treatment, except before "Don".

- El señor Rodríguez. -El señor Presidente.
- La señorita Carmen.

g) With abstract nouns or used in a generative way.

- La belleza. - Los profesores. El mar.

h) With percentages:

- El diez por ciento. - El quince por ciento.

i) With titles:

-El conde de Montecristo - El Marqués de Villaverde

THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE OR INDETERMINATE

1. The indeterminate article is used preceding the substantive to which is referred.

- Es un genio. - Tenía una mirada profunda.
- Fue una reacción unánime.

2. The indeterminate article is used to emphasize.

- Era un valiente. - Sois unos cobardes. - Eres un idiota.

The indefinite article can be emphasized with the word todo.

- Era todo un valiente. - Es todo un héroe.

3. The feminine singular form una is transformed to un before the words which starts by accented a or ha, although these words are feminine.

- un alma. - un hacha. - un ala. - un aro. - un arco.

- Tengo un hambre feroz. - Hay un águila en el árbol.

Exceptions:

- Esta palabra tiene una hache. - Vimos una árabe.

The words which haven't got the accented a, don't change.

- una alumna. - una antena. - una alubia.

4. The indefinite article is sometimes used in an approximate sense:

- Había unas cien personas. - Tardaré unas dos horas.

5. Behind the impersonal "HAY" it is also used the indefinite article:

- Hay un árbol en la plaza. - En mi casa siempre hay una botella de vino.

However, with countless or plural things no article is used.

- Hay árboles - Hay café - Hay mucho tiempo.

6. The indefinite article is used to indicate that an object is included in a more general group or kind, at the same time it is individualized in that group.

- Eso es un castillo medieval. - Esto es un hotel de lujo.

7. It is used with some exclamations:

- ¡Hace un frío glacial! - ¡Hacia un calor tórrido!
- ¡Había una cantidad de gente terrible!

8. The indefinite article will be used before an abstract noun followed by a qualificative adjective.

- Había una quietud extraña. - Reinaba un caos terrible.

THE OMISSION OF THE ARTICLE

- Vendemos libros - Viajaron en avión
- Mi padre es profesor - Esa chica es artista.

In all these examples we want to specify that it's referred to a kind of objects or realities instead of an object or individual reality. So an article is not used.

1. The article is also omitted when a partitive sense is indicated, when the quantity is not specified.

- En las comidas bebemos agua.
- Yo no como pan.

If we want to specify we'll say:

- En las comidas bebo un poco de vino.

2. When we address to a person in a formal way:

- Buenos días, señor Presidente.
- Adiós, señor Pérez.
- Hasta el lunes, señor director.

3. The article is omitted with:

a) Names of people.

- Vi a Juan en el cine. - Estuvimos con Pedro en el parque.

b) With some words when verbs of movement are used (casa, caza, misa, palacio, paseo, presidio)

- Fue llevado a presidio. - Los domingos vamos a misa.

c) Before the names which indicate titles.

- Don Francisco. - Su Alteza Real Felipe.

d) With medio and otro the definite article can be used, but the indefinite cannot be used.

- Quiero el medio kilo de uva que le encargué.
- Prefiero el otro.

e) When an exact number in measures and distances is used.

- La aldea estaba a diez kilómetros.
- Tardarán tres horas en llegar.

f) With degrees (University).

- Mi hija estudia medicina.

g) Between the name of a king or pope and the number.

- Felipe IV Felipe Cuarto.

CONTRACTIONS

When "EL" goes after "A" or after "DE", both forms are contracted by "AL" or "DEL", respectively.

However, the contraction is not placed before proper names built with an article. (Although in spoken language this contraction exists).

- Ésta es una nueva edición de El Quijote.
- Ésta es la historia de El Algarrobo.
- Nos dirigimos a El Ferrol.

THE ARTICLE "LO"

The article "LO" never goes with substantives, because in Spanish neutral nouns don't exist. It normally goes with other elements with noun function:

a) It goes before adjectives, corresponding to them the singular masculine.

- Lo difícil es saber lo que va a hacer.
- Lo bueno es que tenemos mucho tiempo.
- Lo interesante sería llegar antes que ellos.

b) It is placed before adjectives, showing an intensity aspect. It must be noted that the substantive corresponds to the adjective.

- Ya sé lo difícil que es este problema.
- Comentaron lo interesante que fue la película.

c) With the same intensifying function it is placed before the adverbs.

- Verás lo bien que lo pasamos.
- Da pena lo mal que lo está pasando esa chica.
- Es increíble lo temprano que te levantas.

- d) Lo que has a relative usage.
 - Eso es lo que quería.
 - Lo que me dices es mentira.
- e) "Lo" is normally used when we refer to something which is not specified.
 - Es increíble lo de tu madre.
 - Lo del otro día fue vergonzoso.
 - Lo de ese chico no tiene sentido.

THE NOUN - GENDER

The masculine and the feminine are the only existing genres in Spanish.

La casa.
 El profesor.
 La canción.
 El piano es grande.
 La casa es pequeña.
 La mesa es bonita.
 Los libros son difíciles.
 Las canciones son preciosas.
 He vendido el coche.

1. Differences in the gender.
- a) The masculine and the feminine normally alternate O/A.
 chico / chica, niño / niña, perro / perra, hijo / hija
- b) Sometimes the masculine ends with the following consonants: L, N, R, S, Z.
 chaval / chavala, patrón / patrona, pastor / pastora, francés / francesa, rapaz / rapaza.
- c) There are also words in which the feminine is very different from the masculine.
 padre / madre, hombre / mujer, toro / vaca, carnero / oveja, macho / hembra, caballo / yegua, yerno / nuera.
- d) Some words are written the same in both genders.
 El debutante / La debutante. El estudiante / La estudiante
 El periodista / La periodista. El cantante / La cantante
 El principiante / La principiante. El artista / La artista

However, some words change the meaning completely when the gender changes.

El cólera / La cólera. El cura / La cura. El radio / La radio

El orden / La orden. El corte / La corte. El guía / La guía

- e) Some terminations are specific for the feminine:

Actor / Actriz. Emperador / Emperatriz. Poeta / Poetisa. Sacerdote / Sacerdotisa

Abad / Abadesa. Alcalde / Alcaldesa

- f) Animals normally have one form; the sex is specified adding macho or hembra.

Elefante macho / Elefante hembra. Rana macho / Rana hembra. Araña macho / Araña hembra. Serpiente macho / Serpiente hembra.

2. The typical masculine terminations are:

- a) aje, ambre, an, ma, o, or.

Poema, fonema, hambre, sabotaje, color, cielo, pan.

Although there are a lot of exceptions: la moto, la radio, la mano, la foto.

Others are typically feminine:

- b) a, dad, cia, ción, eza, nza, ncia, sión, tud, umbre.

Mesa, casa, piedad, licencia, pronunciación, esperanza, presión, quietud, lumbre.

THE ADJECTIVE.

In Spanish the Adjective must agree with its noun, in Gender and Number; as, "un hombre rico" (a rich man), "una mujer rica" (a rich woman); "hombres ricos" (rich men), "mujeres ricas" (rich women).

PRONOUNS.

Personal Pronouns.

I , yo.	We , nosotros, nosotras.
Me , me	Us , nos, nos.
Me , mí.	Us , nosotros, nosotras.
With me , conmigo.	With us , con nosotros, as.
You , tú.	You , vosotros, vosotras.
You , te,	You , os, os.
You , ti.	You , vosotros, vosotras.
With you , contigo.	With you , con vosotros, as.

You, in familiar polite style, is translated usted for both genders, and the verb agrees with it in the singular or plural, according to the sense. Usted and its plural are always written in abbreviation, thus: V. or Vd. for the first, and Vds. for the latter.

You, usted, (V.).

You, ustedes, (Vds.)

You a usted, le, la, se.

You, a Vds. los, las, se.

You, a V. le, se; a él, ella, sí.	You, a Vds. les, se; a ellos ellas, sí.
With you, con Vds.
He or it, él.	They, ellos.
Him or it, le, se; él, sí.	Them, los, se; ellos, sí.
Him or it, le, se; él, sí.	Them, les, se; ellos, sí.
With him, it, con él, consigo.	With them, con ellos, consigo.
She or it, ella.	They, ellas
Her or it, la, se; ella sí.	Them, las, se; ellas, sí.
Her or it, le, se; ella sí.	Them, les, se; elles, sí.
With her, it, con ella, consigo.	With them, con ellas, consigo

Mí, tí, sí, are always preceded by prepositions.

Me, te, se, le, los, la, las, les, are never placed after prepositions.

Possessive Adjectives.

My, mi, mis. His, su, sus. Its, su, sus.

Your, tu, tus. Her, su, sus. Their, su, sus.

Your, with reference to Usted or Ustedes, su, sus.

These adjectives agree in number with the noun that follows them; as, he sold his horses (él vendió sus caballos); they fulfilled their promise (ellos cumplieron su promesa).

Possessive Pronouns.

Mine, mío, míos. His, suyo, suyos. Its, suyo, suyos. mía, mías. suya, suyas. suya, suyas.

Your, tuyo, . . . Hers, suyo, Theirs, suyo, tuyos suyos. suyos.suya,
tuya, tuyas. suya, suyas. suyas.

Our, nuestro, Your, vuestro, Your, de Usted. nuestros.nuestra, vuestros. de Ustedes.
nuestras. vuestra, vuestras.

Your, with reference to Usted, is also translated suyo, suyos, suya, suyas, or su, sus . . . de. V. or Vds.

Relative and Interrogative Pronouns.

Who, which, que, quien, quienes.

What, that, que.

Which, what, cual, cuales;

also, el cual, los cuales, la cual, las cuales.

Whose, cuyo, cuyos, cuya, cuyas;

also, de quien, de cual, etc.

Demonstrative Pronouns

This, éste. These, éstos. That, aquél.

Those, aquéllos.

« ésta. « estas. « aquélla. « aquéllas.

That, ése, Those, éstos. This, esto.

That, aquello.

« ésa. « ésas. That, eso.

Indefinite Pronouns

One, uno. Such, tal.

Each, cada. Something, algo.

Nobody, { nadie, Nothing, nada.
ninguno. Each one, cada cual.

Somebody, } alguien. Each other, uno y otro.

Anybody, }

VERBS

All Spanish verbs are classed into three conjugations. Verbs ending in ar belong to the first; those in er, to the second; and those in ir, to the third.

A TABLE

2. Hubieseis.	Tuvieseis.	Fueseis	Estuvieseis.
3. Hubiesen.	Tuviesen.	Fuesen.	Estuviesen.

Passive Verbs

Passive verbs are formed from active transitive verbs by adding their participle past to the auxiliary verb ser (to be), through all its changes, as in English, thus, from the active verb amar (to love), is formed the passive verb ser amado (to be loved).

The participle must agree in gender and number with the nominative it refers to; thus, he is loved (él es amado); she is loved (ella es amada); they are loved (ellos, son amados).

Pronominal or Reflexive Verbs.

A pronominal or reflexive verb is conjugated by prefixing the pronouns me, te, se, V. se; nos, os, se, Vds. se to the verb according to its person and number; as, he arms himself, él se arma.

In the infinitive and imperative modes the pronouns are placed after the verb, and in one word with it; the pronoun, therefore, must be suppressed, in order to find out the conjugation: thus, to approach; acercarse, (se) acercar, first conjugation.

Remarks On The Use Of The Subjunctive Mode.

Three are the terminations of the imperfect tense subjunctive mode; ra, ría, se.—The termination ra, or se, is used when the verb is governed by a conditional conjunction, and the verb that completes the sense of the phrase is placed in the termination

ría; If he had money, he would buy the house, si él tuviera dinero, compraría la casa.—If the verb begins without a conditional conjunction, the termination ría may be used, placing the verb that completes the sense in the termination se; as, It would be proper that you should write to him, sería bueno que V. le escribiese.

Verbs signifying command, wish, supplication, etc., being in the present indicative, require the governed verb in the present subjunctive; and if they are in any of the past tenses of the indicative, the governed verb must be in the termination ra or se, of the subjunctive.

The Gerund.

The gerund is that part of the verb that terminates in ando in verbs of the first conjugation, and in iendo in those of the second and third, as publicando (publishing), from publicar; prometiendo (promising), from prometer; asistiendo (assisting), from asistir. It admits no change for gender or number.

It is translated by the English present participle, and conjugated with the verb estar (to be), as, Ana is reading, and Mary is playing on the piano (Ana está leyendo, y María está tocando el piano).

PARTICIPLE.

The passive or past participle terminates in ado in the first conjugation, and in ido in the second and third. It changes its termination according to the number and gender of the person it refers to; except when it follows immediately after the verb haber, in which case it does not admit of any change.

All passive participles that do not terminate in ado or ido are called irregular; such are the following from the verbs:

To open, abrir, abierto. To die, morir, muerto.

To cover, cubrir, cubierto. To resolve, resolver,

To say, decir, dicho. resuelto.

To write, escribir, escrito. To see, ver, visto.

To try, freír, frito. To put, poner, puesto.

To do, hacer, hecho. To turn, volver, vuelto.

To print, imprimir, impreso.

Their compounds have the same irregularity.

Verbs That Have Two Participles.

There are some verbs that have two passive participles, the one regular and the other irregular. They are eighty-three in number. Such are: To bless, bendecir, bendecido, bendito; to compel, compeler, compelido, compulso, to convert, convertir, convertido, converso; to awake, despertar, despertado, despierto, to elect, elegir, elegido, electo; to express, expresar, expresado, expreso; to fix, fijar, fijado, fijo; to satiate, hartar, hartado, harto; to include, incluir, incluido, incluso; to join, juntar, juntado, junto; to arrest, prender, prendido, preso; to provide, proveer, proveído, provisto; to loosen, soltar, soltado, suelto; to suspend, suspender, suspendido, suspense, etc.

The regular participles of these verbs are used to form the compound tenses with haber; as, he has awaked early (él ha despertado temprano).

The irregular participles are used as verbal adjectives, and with the verbs ser, etc., and do not form compound tenses with haber; excepting preso, prescrito, provisto, roto, injerto, proscrito, and supreso, which have both uses; as, he is early awaked (él está despierto temprano); They have provided (ellos han provisto or proveído),

THE PLURAL

In Spanish the plural is formed adding s or es to the singular.

rosa	-	rosas.
edificio	-	edificios.
café	-	café.
piano	-	pianos.
mesa	-	mesas.
canción	-	canciones.
cárcel	-	cárceles.
árbol	-	árboles.
rubí	-	rubíes.
rey	-	reyes.

If we observe we'll see an s when the substantives finish with a non-accented vowel or with é.

But we add es to the substantives that finish with a consonant and with an accented vocal which is not é. - Y is considered a consonant in this case.

There are some exceptions: papá - papás, mamá - mamás, sofá - sofás, dominó - dominós.

1. The nouns which in singular finish with s, don't change in plural.

* el martes - los martes; el paraguas - los paraguas; el parabrasis - los parabrasis.

But there are some exceptions.

* interés - intereses, tos - toses.

The grave or esdrújulos substantives that finish with x or z don't have a plural.

* clímax, mantis, tórax, Pérez.

2. Other words only are used in plural:

alicates, tijeras, gafas, pantalones, tenazas, pinzas, nupcias, comestibles, viveres, tinieblas, esponsales, cosquillas, bragas, calzoncillos.

Changes in pronunciation and writing

a) Pronunciation:

El carácter - Los caracteres. El régimen - Los regímenes.

b) Writing:

The final z is changed to c in the plural form es.

capaz - capaces, capataz - capataces, rapaz - rapaces, voraz - voraces, lápiz - lápices.

Some words accented in the last syllable are:

canción - canciones, francés - franceses

varón - varones, balón - balones.

Sometimes the meaning of the word changes when it's put into plural.

* Está bien hecho. No tengo bienes

* Tiene una esposa francesa. Le pusieron las esposas.

The Personal Pronoun

The 1<sup>o</sup> and the 2<sup>o</sup> persons.

a) With the prepositions según and entre the forms yo/tú are used.

* Según tú eso no es verdad.

* Entre tú y yo, creo que se casará con él.

b) With the other prepositions we use the forms mí/ti:

* Este vaso es para ti.

* Están hablando de mí.

c) The preposition con originates the forms conmigo y contigo:

* Ven conmigo a Madrid.

La 3<sup>a</sup> persona.

It uses the forms subject, going before the following preposition:

* Tu madre está hablando con él.

* Esta carta es para ella.

The non-accented forms which correspond to the direct and indirect object, are placed before the verb.

* Me pidió que viniera.

* Te dije que fueras a la estación.

The forms le, les placed in front of lo, la, los or las acquire the form se.

* Yo le di dinero * Yo se lo di (le changes to se, and money changes to lo).

* Yo le compré los libros (a él). Yo se los compré (le changes to se, and the books change to los).

* Yo les di pan - yo se lo di (les changes to se, and pan changes to lo).

* He entregado un paquete al cartero = Le (to the postman) he entregado un paquete = Se lo he entregado (Le changes to se, and packet changes to lo).

The form se will always go before when it is combined with te or me.

* Se me ocurre. * Se te advirtió.

LA LE LO

When only a pronoun-complement appears:

1. If the sentence is referred to objects, the forms lo(s) or la(s) are used for the masculine and feminine respectively:

- * Visitaron el museo . . . . . Lo visitaron.
- * Vieron la foto . . . . . La vieron.

With verbs of adding, accumulation... or their contraries, add, put, to take away etc., the sentences are formed with the preposition A, and the pronoun will LE(s).

- * A este coche le falta velocidad.
- * A este motor le añadieron más potencia.
- * A esta casa le pusieron el tejado ayer.

2. If it is personal:

a) When it is an indirect complement, the form le(s) is always used.

- * Yo compré un libro a Pedro/María - Le compró un libro (to Pedro or to María).
- * Yo vendí el coche a los vecinos/las vecinas. - Les vendí el coche.

b) When it is a direct complement:

i) If it is feminine it is used the form la(s).

- * Juan vio a Luisa. - Juan la vio.
- * Enrique besó a su madre. - Enrique la besó.
- * Culparon a las mujeres del asesinato. - Las culparon.
- * Mató a la niña. - La mató.

ii) If it is masculine lo(s) or le(s) can be used.

- * María vio a Pedro. - María le/lo vio.
- * Ella contempló al niño. - Ella le/lo contempló
- * Ellos asesinaron al anciano. - Ellos le/lo asesinaron.
- * Pedro esperó a los niños. - Él les/los esperó.

iii) If the pronoun refers to usted(es), it is normally used the form le(s).

- * Tenía muchas ganas de conocerle (a usted).
- * Teníamos muchas ganas de conocerles (a ustedes).

GENERAL IRREGULARITIES OF SPANISH VERBS.

EUPHONIC CHANGES.

Verbs That Require A Change In Their Radical Letters.

- 1 Verbs ending in CAR change the c into qu when the first letter of the termination is E.
2. Verbs ending in CER change the c into z }
3. " CIR c " z } When the first letter
4. " GER G " J } of the termination

5. " GIR G " J } is O or A
6. " QUIR QU " C }
7. " GUIR drop U " }
8. " GAR add U " } When the first letter of
9. " ZAR change z " c } the termination is E.

THE IRREGULAR VERBS.

Irregular verbs suffer some changes either in their radical letters or in the termination of the conjugations to which they belong, or in both cases. The total number of such verbs in the Spanish language is about eight hundred and seventy-six. Of these, however, four hundred and sixty-one are compound forms. But this apparently very long list may be reduced to six classes, as follows:

I. To the first class belong certain verbs like acertar, ascender, sentir, which have the vowel e in the penultimate syllable of the infinitive, and change this e when it bears the tonic accent, or is in the singular or the third person plural of the present tense (indicative, subjunctive, imperative), into ie. As a general rule, and with very rare exceptions, if in the kindred noun there is the diphthong ie, the verb is irregular of this class. Verbs of the third conjugation belonging to this class have the further peculiarity that the vowel e of the stem changes into i when unaccented and followed by a strong termination (that is, containing a strong vowel, viz., a or o), and in the preterite before a diphthong. To this class belong also the verbs adquirir, concernir (defective), and discernir.

II. To the second class belong certain verbs like, mover, and dormir, which have the vowel o in the penultimate syllable of the infinitive, and change this o into u when it bears the tonic accent or is in the singular and the third person plural of the present tense (indicative, subjunctive, and imperative). If the kindred noun has the diphthong ue, the verb generally belongs to this class. Dormir and morir (3d conj.) have ue in the same positions where sentir (class I) has i. The gerund in this class belongs uniformly to the aorist (or preterite) system.

III. To the third class belong verbs of the second and third conjugations ending in cer or cir preceded by a vowel, the irregularity consisting in their taking a z before the c when the terminations begin with a or o. This occurs in the first person singular of the present indicative, in all persons of the present subjunctive, and in those of the imperative which are formed from the subjunctive. About two hundred and eight verbs belong to this class, the forms in ecer being very numerous.

IV. This class is composed wholly of verbs of the third conjugation with the stem vowel e (like pedir), and change this e for i in the gerund in the third person (singular and plural) of the present indicative, the whole of the present subjunctive, and the imperative formed therefrom, the third persons of the past definite, and all those of the imperfect subjunctive.

NOTE: -The verbs which end in eír and ñír, like reír, ceñír, lose the i of their endings when it is not accented (gerund, third person past definite, and imperfect and future subjunctive), and thus is avoided the double sound of i which results; thus:

*Riendo, Rieron, Riera, Riese, etc.

V. To this class belong those verbs ending in uir in which both vowels are sounded, like argüir (excluding therefore those in guir, quir). Their irregularity consists in adding y to the stem when this is accented or followed by a strong vowel.

The preterite (florist) stem is regular, but the initial i of the diphthongal terminations ie, io, is changed to y, since it comes between two vowels. The gerund in this class belongs always to the aorist system.

VI. To this class are assigned all the remaining irregular verbs, among which there is, however, no common principle of classification. A portion of these have florist (preterite) systems resembling more or less closely the Latin, while the remainder are irregular in the strictest sense. These verbs are therefore given individually.

Impersonal Verbs.

Impersonal verbs are those which are conjugated in the third person singular of each tense only, without expressing the nominative, as:

GRANIZAR, to hail.

- It hails graniza -It has hailed ha granizado
- It had hailed había granizado
- It hailed granizaba, granizó
- It will have hailed habrá granizado
- It will hail granizará -It may have hailed quizá haya granizado

-Let it hail granice

-It may hail quizá granice

-If it hailed, granizara -If it had hailed hubiera granizado

-If it would hail granizaría -It would have hailed habría granizado

The following are some of the impersonal verbs:

-To freeze helar, irr. -To lighten relampaguear

-To frost escarchar -To thunder tronar, irr.

-To thaw deshelar -To rain llover

-To drizzle lloviznar -To happen suced, acaecer, acontecer.

-To snow nevar -To dawn amanecer

-To be cold hacer frío -To become night anoche

Defective Verbs.

SOLER, to accustom. Cl. II.

This verb is used only in the two following tenses:

Indic. Pres. 1 suelo, 2 sueles, 3 suele, 2 Vd. suele: 1 solemos; 2 soléis, 3 suelen.—Imperf. 1 solía, 2 solías, 3 solía: 1 solíamos, 2 solíais, 3 solían.

PLACER, to please. Cl. III.

This verb is used only in the third person singular or plural, in the moods and tenses as follows: it is always accompanied by a personal pronoun in the objective case.

Indic. Pres. 1 me place, 2 te place, 3 le place, 2 le place a Vd.: 1 nos place, 2 os place, 3 les place. 2 les place a Vds.; or 1 me placen, 2 te placen, etc.—Imperf. 1 me placía, or placían, 2 te placía, or placían, etc.—Pret. 1 me plugo, 2 te plugo, etc.: 1 me pluguieron. 2 te pluguieron, etc.—Subj. Pres. 1 me plegue, etc.—Imperf. 1st there. me pluguiera, etc.—2d term. Me pluguiese. etc.

ROER, to gnaw. Cl. VI.

Indic. Pres. 1 roo, roigo, royo, 2 roes, 3 roe: 1 roemos, 2 roéis, 3 roen.—Subj. Pres. 1 roa, roiga, roya, 2 roes, roigas, royas, 3 roe, roiga, roya: 1 roamos, roigamos, royamos, 2 roáis, roigáis, royáis, 3 roan, roigan, royan.

Remark.—Corroer, to corrode, makes corroe, corroen, in the present indicative, and corroa, corroan, in the subjunctive.

A LIST OF ALL THE IRREGULAR VERBS.

Obs. 1. The compound verbs are not inserted, when they have the same irregularity as the simple ones from which they are derived: as, componer, contraponer, etc., which are conjugated like poner.

For the convenience of the learner the strictness of this principle has been departed from in the two cases following: 1st. When the simple is no longer used by itself. To this list belong these nine: cluir (Cl. V), cordar (Cl. I), ducir (Cl. III), manecer (Cl. III), sitiuir (Cl. V), tribuir (Cl. V), vertir (Cl. I), blandecer, bravecer (Cl. III). 2d. Some compounds of ad (reduce to a) have been included, such as asonar, atender, and asentir.

On the other hand, compounds from nominal roots, as enflaquecer, florecer, have been inserted.

Obs. 2. The most general irregularities of the Spanish verbs consist in their taking i, j, y, or ue, or i, instead of o, or e. To find the infinitive mode of such verbs, separate the regular termination, and omit the letter or letters that do not belong to the radicals of such verbs: as in comienzo, muestras, sintió, condujeron, trajeran, construyesen, the terminations are o, as, ió, eron, eran, esen. The remaining letters are, comienz, muestr, sint, conduj, tray, construy. Add to these the regular terminations of the infinitive mode, and they will read comienzar, muestrar, sintir, condujir, trajer, construyir. Take off the i, j, and y, change ue into o, and the i into e; add a c before the termination to those in ij or uj; and they will be comenzar, mostrar, sentir, conducir, traer, construir.

Obs. 3. The irregular participles are set in italics after their verbs.

The verbs of the first column are conjugated like those of the second, which must be consulted in their respective places.

THE REFLEXIVE PRONOUNS

Subject After a preposition Reflexive

yo	conmigo	me
tú	contigo	te
él	consigo	se
ella	consigo	se
ello	ello	se
nosotros, nosotros, nos
vosotros, vosotros, os
ellos, ellas ellos, ellas se

We talk about reflexive pronouns when the action of the verb is referred to the subject. The position of the reflexives is the same as those of the complements.

- * Me he comprado un coche.
- * La mujer se puso el sombrero.
- * Los niños se compraron helados.

Placing of the reflexive pronoun:

a) With the INFINITIVE, the GERUND, and the affirmative IMPERATIVE they always go after and together.

- * Cállate y no hables.
- * Lo mejor es callarnos.
- * Estaban bañándose en la playa.

b) With nos and os in the first person and the second person of the imperative plural, the verb loses its final s and d respectively before the pronouns.

* sentémos - sentémonos.

* sentad - sentaos.

If me or te come together with se, the last is always placed in the first place.

* Se me ha caído el libro.

* Se te ha roto el vestido.

2. It also expresses an idea of reciprocity:

* Mis padres se quieren. (each other)

* Ella y yo nos encontramos a la puerta del cine.

* Vosotros os odiáis.

3. The impersonal se:

* Se han hecho muchas averiguaciones.

* Se obtienen buenos resultados.

b) It is also called "the impersonal voice". Se + verb in the 3<sup>a</sup> person in singular.

* Se cree que no vendrá.

* Se habla mucho de él.

* Se trabaja poco en esta empresa.

* Se espera que venga pronto.

PRONOUNS AND DEMONSTRATIVE ADJECTIVES

1. The demonstrative adjective accompanies the noun and agrees with the gender and the person (it has not accent).

* Este hombre. * Esa mujer. * Esos niños.

2. The demonstratives point out the relation of proximity between the object which is referred and the different participants of the dialogue.

It can be about the different kinds of proximity.

a) Este, esta, esto, estos, estas serve to express the proximity of the object which is referred.

* Este vaso que tengo en la mano.

* Estos periódicos que estoy leyendo.

b) Ese, esa, eso, esos, esas express a medium grade between proximity and distance according to the person who speaks.

* Esa revista que estás leyendo.

* Esas casas de enfrente.

c) Aquel, aquella, aquello, aquellos, aquellas indicate a certain distance according to the person who speaks.

* Aquellos árboles en la colina.

* Aquellas casas al otro lado del río.

3. There can be proximity or distance in the time:

* Aquellas vacaciones fueron más divertidas que éstas.

* Aquel año fue más seco que éste.

It can also be referred to the order of the sentence.

* Tuvieron dos hijos y una hija: ésta se casó, aquellos trabajaron con su padre.

* Tenemos dos perros y un gato. Éste es muy independiente, aquellos son my cariñosos.

THE RELATIVE PRONOUN

The relative pronoun which:

The antecedent

The antecedent is the word to which the relative is referred.

It can be:

A substantive:

* Ganó el atleta que estaba mejor preparado.

A pronoun:

* ¿ Y te preocupas por ella, que tanto daño te ha hecho?

An adjective:

* Es alto como un pino.

An adverb:

* Vete ahora que no hay nadie.

A whole sentence:

* Era muy desdichada, por lo que pensaba suicidarse.

SER

Present

Yo soy

Tú eres

Él /Ella / Usted es

Nos. somos

Vos. sois

Ellos /Ustedes son

a) In Spanish there is an obvious difference between the verbs ser and estar. Many students of the language find this difference difficult to see.

La mesa es redonda.

La habitación es grande.

Nuestra casa es vieja, pero es muy grande.

Estos chicos son muy simpáticos.

Mis zapatos son negros.

Pedro es alto, pero su hermana es baja.

If you see all these sentences, all of them show how the objects are. There is a description. A quality is pointed out.

b) The verb ser shows origin.

- Yo soy de España.

- Mi amigo es de Suiza.

- Este mármol es de Italia.

- Esa porcelana es de China.

c) When we talk about time we always use the verb ser.

- Hoy es lunes, 5 de marzo.

- Todavía es verano.

- ¿ Qué hora es? Son las dos.

- " ¡Es muy tarde!" " ¡No, todavía es pronto!

d) The verb ser always shows possession.

- Ese coche es de mi hermano.

- Esa es la casa de mi tío.

- Esos son los libros de mi amigo.

e) The professions and jobs are used with the verb ser.

- Mi padre es médico.

- Este hombre es carpintero.

- Nosotros somos estudiantes.

- Esos hombres son jugadores de fútbol.

ESTAR

Present

Yo estoy

Nos. estamos

Tú estás

Vos. estáis

Él / Ella / Usted está

Ellos / Ustedes están

a) Situation and place.

Learn the following sentences:

Madrid está en el centro de España.

Los vasos están en la mesa.

El árbol está en el jardín.

Los niños están en el parque.

Tus zapatos están debajo de la cama.

All these sentences show a situation or place in which something or someone is. All of them answer the question ¿dónde? ¿Dónde está Madrid? ¿Dónde están los vasos? etc.

b) Physical State

The verb estar denotes a physical state or a mind state.

Have a look at these examples.

- Mi madre está enfadada.

- Mi hermano siempre está alegre.

- La habitación está desordenada.

- La mesa está sucia.

- Pedro está enfermo.

- Hoy estoy muy nervioso.

All these sentences would answer the question ¿cómo está? ¿cómo se siente?

c) Tense (estar a, estar en)

We normally use estar a with dates and days of the week. Estar en is also used with months and seasons.

- Todavía estamos en Febrero.

- Estamos a 5 de abril de 1999.

- Ya estamos en invierno.

- Hoy estamos a viernes, 10 de junio.

If the sentence is negative we put the negative but not before the verb.

- La taza no está en la mesa.
- Burdeos no está en España.

If the sentence is interrogative the order is changed subject-verb, verb-subject:

- Juanita está en el parque. - ¿Está Juanita en el parque?

THE ADJECTIVE

a) In Spanish the adjective is changeable; it agrees in gender and number with the noun.

- mesa blanca. - muro pequeño.
- puerta pequeña. - pasillo largo.

The adjective is normally placed after the substantive to which qualifies. It is called then qualifying adjective and it is used to describe the substantive.

- Es un hombre alto. - Es una mujer alta.
- Son unos hombres altos. - Son unas mujeres altas.
- Es un chico listo. - Es una chica lista.

b) However, the adjectives which don't describe but limit they are normally placed before the substantive. This category includes the ordinal numbers (once jugadores), quantity adjectives such as mucho, poco, demasiado, tanto, varios, cuanto, cada, demás, otro, tal; and the demonstrative and possessive adjectives.

- Esto es demasiado caro.
- Eso es poco educativo.
- Dame otro helado.
- Cada persona es un mundo.

c) The predicative adjectives change the substantive in an indirect way, so they go together by means of a verb.

- La casa es grande. - Ese libro parece interesante.
- Esos chicos son listos. - Esas chicas son altas.

d) A few adjectives don't change the gender, but they change the number.

- Ese chico es inteligente. - Esa chica es inteligente.
- Un hombre hipócrita. - Una mujer hipócrita.
- Esos chicos son inteligentes.
- Esos hombres son hipócritas.

Other similar adjectives are: grande, indígena, cosmopolita, probable, independiente, árabe, veloz, verde, azul, gris, peor, fenomenal, espectacular, etc.

To know if they are masculine or singular we must refer to the noun or to the article which goes with it.

- Un caballo veloz. - Una yegua veloz.
- Un lfo fenomenal. - Una actuación fenomenal.
- El cielo gris. - La nube gris.

e) The following adjectives normally go before the noun: bueno, malo, joven, viejo, pequeño, hermoso, although this not a fixed rule. In general, if the adjective goes before the substantive, the emphasis goes in the substantive.

Some adjectives, when they go before, they apocopate in the singular masculine, it gets shorter (bueno - buen; malo - mal; alguno - algún; ninguno - ningún; primero - primer; tercero - tercer; cualquiera - cualquier).

- Un buen libro. - Una buena revista.

If the adjective is placed after the substantive is given more emphasis to the adjective.

- Un comienzo bueno. - Un libro malo.

Generally we give more emphasis with the word muy.

- Es un libro muy bueno. - Es una revista muy mala.

A Key to the Pronunciation as Represented in This Dictionary.

SPANISH ALPHABET.

Give to the vowel the sound that the syllable that follow it in italics has in English; and sound also, as in English, each of the syllables that represent said sound throughout all the dictionary.

VOWELS.

Pronounce a, ah; e, ay; i, ee; o, oh, u, u (in bull); y, ee.

The vowels have invariably the same sound, and must be fully and distinctly pronounced. The u is silent in the syllables gue, gui, que, qui, which are pronounced gay, gee, kay, kee: when the u is to be sounded, it is marked thus, ü, as in argüir (ar-goo-eer).

A

a [ah], First letter of the Spanish alphabet. It is pronounced as the a in alarm.

a, prep. to, in, at, according to, on, by, for, and of; as voy a Madrid, I am going to Madrid. A la inglesa, the English way. A oriente, to the east. Jugar a los naipes, to play cards. A las ocho, at eight o'clock. Vino a pie, he came on foot. Quien a hierro mata a hierro muere, he who lives by the sword, dies by the sword. Dos a dos, two by two. ¿A cómo sale el kilo? A diez pesos, how much a kilo? Ten pesos. Este vaso huele a vino, this glass smells of wine. V. REAL. -A coalesces with the masculine article el, forming al: Al rey, to the king. Al papa, to the pope. This masculine article is also used before the infinitive form of verbs taken substantively: Al amanecer, at the break of day. Al ir yo allá, when I was going there. -A is equivalent to the limit or end of any place or time. Pagaré a su debido tiempo, I will pay in due course. Desde aquí a San Juan, from here to St. John. Me llegaba el agua a la cintura, the water was up to my waist. -A sometimes signifies the motive or reason: A instancia de la ciudad, at the request of the city. ¿A qué propósito?, to what purpose? -It also serves to express distributive numbers: A perdiz por barba, a partridge a head. -Before the infinitive form, and at the beginning of a sentence, it sometimes has a conditional sense: A decir verdad, to tell the truth. -This preposition governs almost all parts of speech, whether nouns, adjectives, pronouns, or verbs: A los hombres, to men. De mal en peor, from bad to worse. A mí, a ti, a vosotros, to me, to you. A jugar, to play. Vamos a pasear, let's go for a walk. -It points out the person in whom the action of the verb terminates, and then is placed before the accusative or objective case, as Amo a Pedro, I love Peter. -A is still used in some phrases instead of por, en, sin, para, and la; and in obsolete writings for con and de. -In composition it serves to convert substantives and adjectives into verbs, as abocar from boca, ablandar from blando. Formerly it was prefixed to many words, as abajar, amatar, etc.; but being redundant, these words are now written bajar, matar, etc. -A is frequently used adverbially, as A deshora, unseasonably. A diferencia de esto, contrary to this. A consecuencia de eso, in consequence to that. A decir verdad, to tell the truth. Al menos, at least. A sabiendas, knowingly. A veces, sometimes. A ojos vistas, plainly, publicly; barefacedly. A cuestras, on the shoulders. A escondidas, privately, in a secret manner. A prueba de bomba, bomb-proof. -A denotes the number, price, rate, manner of action, instrument, height, depth, etc., as, El gasto asciende a cien pesos, the expense amounts to a hundred pesos. Se hizo el seguro a tres por ciento, the insurance was taken out at three per cent. El azúcar se vende a tres pesos la libra, sugar is sold at three pesos a pound. Él se viste a la española, he dresses after the Spanish fashion. Pasaron el río con el agua a la cintura, they crossed the river up to their waists in water. No le llega el vestido a la rodilla, her dress does not reach her knees. A fe de hombre de bien, on the faith of an honest man.
